

Local Ice Cream Shop Up For 'Best Bathroom' In America

Story by Craig Gold / CBS 12 News

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. -- Florida's no stranger to "bowl" games.... With the orange bowl, the citrus bowl....

But who's ready for the "toilet bowl"?

Sloan's ice cream shop in west palm beach is... That's who.

A place we associate with a creamy cold scoop... And now, something that "rhymes" with scoop.

"It's really become a focal point of the store."

David Wild, Sloans director of franchising is talking about their unique bathroom.

Something patron Erik Houser didn't know about until we showed him.

"Wow, that's cool." said Houser.

Yep that's right.

You can literally see right into the bathroom while you're stuffing your face.

But don't worry, people won't get a view of you while you're doing you're business.

That is... if you make sure to lock the door.

That's when the window fogs up so patrons can't see you.

"Before people go into the bathroom they always come to us and they say how does it work? Can I see out but not see in? Can they see me?" says Wild.

The bathroom unique and risqué enough that it's now a top 10 finalist for the company Cintas's "best restroom."

"Any reason to get people into your store is a great thing to have." says Wild.

If Sloans we're to win the toilet bowl?

"We're going to celebrate with some nice hot fudge brownie sundaes. Some great ice cream, some great chocolate."

If their dreams of victory get flushed down the toilet this year, they'll just have to rinse their hands and come back strong next year.
